

ATI CONFERENCE 2026

Exhibition Opportunities

In this pack you will find details of how to exhibit at the ATI Conference 2026, being held on 17th - 18th November at the ICC Wales in Newport.

This two-day event will again feature keynotes, plenary sessions and a breakout programme that addresses the key topics affecting the sector.

"Great event, excellent atmosphere and well-structured agenda. The panel discussions were a highlighted both on main stage and in the breakouts.

Fantastic networking opportunity, with a strong line up of speakers and insights."

Why exhibit at ATI Conference 2026?

Now in its seventh edition, and the third hosted at ICC Wales in Newport, the ATI Conference has firmly established itself as a key fixture in the UK aerospace calendar.

Exhibitor feedback from ATI Conference 2025 was highly positive, with particular praise for the ease of stand design and build, the venue's location and facilities, and the quality of engagement with delegates.

With nearly 450 attendees in 2025, the conference continues to attract a strong and influential audience, a success we aim to build on in 2026.

"The format was spot on, with a good balance of sessions to attend, a choice of breakout sessions and generous time for networking and visiting the exhibitors. There was plenty of space, didn't feel cramped, excellent venue." – Delegate survey

"Congratulations and thank you for putting on an excellent event! This was my first time at the conference and I will definitely be coming back and recommending it to my colleagues. It was great to meet others in the industry & hear about the tech challenges and possible solutions moving towards sustainable air travel. I thought the range of topics being discussed was spot on, there was something for everyone. The venue, catering and organisation were perfect.." – Delegate survey
